"The Outskirts" is a comic book project with students, which aims to raise awareness about social discrimination and Islamophobia.

The comic graphically depicts various situations faced by people migrating from Muslim countries to the European continent.

It is an appropriate material for primary and secondary school that addresses issues such as adolescence, migration and intercultural conflicts at school.

The comic has been illustrated by the cartoonist Manu Ripoll and the script was the result of 6 months of workshops with students at the AURELIA CAPMANY school in Cornellà de Llobregat, coordinated by Yorgos Konstantinou.
